Woolwich Attack On Facebook ->>->>->> DOWNLOAD

By Allah, we swear by the almighty Allah we will never stop fighting you until you leave us alone. The Daily Telegraph. ^ Farmer, Ben (24 May 2013). Retrieved 11 September 2015. On 19 December 2013, both of the attackers were found guilty of Rigby's murder.[13] On 26 February 2014, they were sentenced to life imprisonment, with Adebolajo given a whole life order and Adebowale ordered to serve at least 45 years.[14] The attack was condemned by political and Muslim leaders in the United Kingdom and in the international press.[15][16]. Video footage of one of the perpetrators justifying the killing of Lee Rigby was obtained by The Sun and ITN.[111] ITN's video, which was edited before it was broadcast,[112] aired during the 18:30 ITV News bulletin before the 21:00 watershed, and again in its 22:00 bulletin.[111] After being posted on the ITN website in the afternoon, the high level of visits caused the site to crash and go offline for around half an hour.[111] Total traffic on the site, which averages 860,000 unique users per week, reached 1.2 million for the day of the attack.[112]. BBC News. ^ "Lee Rigby killer Michael Adebolajo launches appeal". The Ministry of Defence investigated the incident. The report found that the death could not have been prevented, although his killers had appeared in seven intelligence investigations.[117][118] In December 2012, Michael Adebowale had discussed killing a soldier on Facebook with a foreign-based extremist known as "Foxtrot".
